

Sea Harrier Over The Falklands: The Black Death

The Falklands War was a brief but bloody conflict that took place in 1982 between the United Kingdom and Argentina. The war began when Argentina invaded the Falkland Islands, a British overseas territory in the South Atlantic Ocean. The British government responded by sending a task force to retake the islands. The task force included the aircraft carrier HMS Hermes, which carried a squadron of Sea Harrier fighter jets.

The Sea Harrier was very successful in air combat, and it shot down 20 Argentine aircraft during the war.

The Sea Harrier

The Sea Harrier was a British naval fighter jet that was designed to operate from aircraft carriers. The Sea Harrier was a very capable aircraft, and it was the only aircraft in the world that was capable of vertical take-off and landing (VTOL). This meant that the Sea Harrier could take off and land from a very small area, which made it ideal for operating from aircraft carriers.

The Sea Harrier was armed with a variety of weapons, including air-to-air missiles, air-to-ground missiles, and bombs. The Sea Harrier was also equipped with a radar and a cannon. The Sea Harrier was a very effective aircraft, and it played a key role in the British victory in the Falklands War.
