Aliani's work often deals with themes of displacement, assimilation, hybridity, and globalization. He explores the ways in which individuals and communities negotiate their identities in a constantly changing world. His work is characterized by a strong sense of empathy and a deep understanding of the human condition.

Secession Insecession

Secession Insecession is a series of works by Aliani that explores the complex relationship between secession and insecession. Secession refers to the act of withdrawing from a larger group or organization, while insecession refers to the act of entering a new group or organization. Aliani's work examines the ways in which individuals and communities negotiate their identities in relation to these two opposing forces.

The Secession Insecession series includes a variety of works, including paintings, sculptures, and installations. Aliani often uses found objects and recycled materials in his work, which adds to the sense of displacement and hybridity that is central to his artistic practice.

One of the most striking works in the Secession Insecession series is a painting titled "The Departure." The painting depicts a group of people leaving a building. The people are all dressed in different clothes, and they are carrying their belongings with them. The painting suggests a sense of urgency and displacement, and it raises questions about the reasons why people leave their homes.

Another work in the Secession Insecession series is a sculpture titled "The Arrival." The sculpture depicts a group of people arriving in a new country. The people are all wearing different clothes, and they are carrying their belongings with them. The sculpture suggests a sense of hope and optimism, and it raises questions about the challenges and opportunities that immigrants face when they arrive in a new country.
